

Aquila scores international sustainable tourism ward

AQUILA Private Game Reserve has scooped the world's most prestigious international sustainable tourism award, the 2020 Skål International Sustainable Tourism Award for a Major Tourist Attraction.

The 2020 Skål awards was presented at their annual general assembly last week. This year, the world congress assembly was held virtually due to the coronavirus pandemic.

The virtual assembly, together with the presentation of its internationally acclaimed awards, gave a glimmer of hope while the tourism economy of the world is recovering.

Skål International is a professional organisation of tourism leaders around the world, promoting global tourism and friendship.

“It is a honour to receive global recognition for the sustainable tourism efforts we make in Cape Town and being the only South African recipient at the 2020 awards ceremony, we are proud to once again be able to shine the light on our ongoing projects and initiatives to enhance sustainable tourism, job creation, social upliftment, conservation and natural resource management efforts,” said Searl Derman, the owner of Aquila Private Game Reserve.

Premier Alan Winde congratulated the team at Aquila. | Weekend Argus Reporter
